RUNNING BIT

The Logistics Department

Whenever plans come up, take an unusually thoughtful interest in a small practical detail: seating, snacks, luggage, opening hours.

RUNNING BIT

Borrowed Wisdom

Refer back to someone's earlier, ordinary remark as though it were valuable advice for a different situation.

RUNNING BIT

Infrastructure Enthusiast

Naturally work the word "infrastructure" into unrelated conversations. Never use it twice within the same topic.

RUNNING BIT

Tiny Triumphs

Find unusually small, sincere reasons to propose a toast or celebration. Raising a glass is enough; nobody needs to drink.

RUNNING BIT

The Unappointed Critic

Offer occasional precise, positive reviews of things nobody normally reviews: a spoon, the lighting, the arrangement of bread.

RUNNING BIT

Future Tradition

Casually suggest that ordinary things happening tonight could become annual traditions. Do not push if nobody engages.

MISSION

Forecast

Get another player to say "umbrella." You cannot say it yourself, request the word, or introduce a word-guessing game.

MISSION

The Echo

Introduce an expression that another player later uses in a different context. Asking them to repeat it does not count.

MISSION

Resident Expert

Get the person on your right explaining a niche interest, then get a different person to ask them a follow-up question.

MISSION

Holiday Committee

Get two other people contributing concrete suggestions to an imaginary group holiday. You cannot propose the destination yourself.

MISSION

Human Diagram

Get someone to use an object on the table to explain something. You cannot suggest using props.

MISSION

A Matter of Principle

Get two other people discussing the merits of a trivial choice: bowls versus plates, window versus aisle, sweet versus salty breakfast. Both must offer a reason, not just state a preference.
